Grants for part-time study

The two main costs part-time students will have while studying are tuition fees and living costs. Part-time students who started their course before 1 September 2012 can get grants to help with both.

Tuition fees

Fee Grant
What's it for?	The Fee Grant helps towards the cost of tuition fees charged by the university or college.
How much can they get?	Up to £1,285 depending on the course intensity and the cost of the course fees. It will also depend on the student's household income. If their household income is £25,421 or over they won't get any Fee Grant. <table border="1"> <thead> <tr> <th>Course intensity</th> <th>Maximum Fee Grant</th> </tr> </thead> <tbody> <tr> <td>50% to 59% of the equivalent full-time course.</td> <td>Up to £855 or the cost of the fees charged by the university or college, whichever is lower.</td> </tr> <tr> <td>60% to 74% of the equivalent full-time course.</td> <td>Up to £1,025 or the cost of the fees charged by the university or college, whichever is lower.</td> </tr> <tr> <td>75% or more of the equivalent full-time course.</td> <td>Up to £1,285 or the cost of the fees charged by the university or college, whichever is lower.</td> </tr> </tbody> </table>	Course intensity	Maximum Fee Grant	50% to 59% of the equivalent full-time course. How course intensity is worked out

Course intensity is how long it takes the student to complete their part-time course compared to the equivalent full-time course.

The intensity of the course is worked out by taking the number of part-time units (such as credits, credit points or modules) that they'll be studying in the academic year and dividing it by the number of units that they'd complete in one academic year if they were studying the course full time. The result is then multiplied by 100 to give the course intensity as a percentage.

So, the formula to work this out is:

Part-time units ÷ full-time units x 100 = the intensity of the course as a percentage (%)

The course intensity can be different from one year to another. A student can study at a level of below 50% and receive a Fee Grant at the 50% rate as long as they still complete the course in no longer than twice the time it would take to get the same qualification if they studied full-time. For example, if the full-time course is four years, they must complete the part-time course in no more than eight years.
